

CHEAP JUSTICE.

That is What the Officers and People

Think Was Meted Out to the

Embezzler Long Who Was Liberated

By Justice Lord on Saturday Last for $8.10—The Prisoner Tried to Bribe the Deputy Marshal.

Not Severe Enough.

Marshal Lloyd and Deputy Marshal Rawson feel very sore in regard to the small fine placed upon John Long, who was arrested for obtaining money under false pretenses. They claim that Long was a very dangerous criminal and should be behind the prison bars and they felt positive that they had evidence enough to put him and there keep him there, consequently they were very much surprised when they learned that Judge Lord had discharged him upon the payment of $8.10, the actual cost of the Court without any trial whatever.

The prisoner's attorney, Mr. Aram of Oakland, visited Judge Lord's Court on Saturday morning and informed the Justice that he was the attorney for Long, and that his client desired to plead guilty to the charge against him, and to appear at once, consequently Deputy Marshal Rawson was sent to the County Jail to get the prisoner and bring him before the bar of justice.

The deputy Marshal went to Oakland and returned accompanied by the prisoner, who while on the way offered the deputy marshal $50 if he would allow him to go, as he wanted to get out of the county as soon as possible. The deputy marshal told him that he would have to make his offers before the Judge.

When the courtroom was reached the complaint was read to Long and he at once pleaded guilty. He, then waived time for the passing of sentence and Justice Lord imposed a fine of $8.10 upon him, remarking that as he had been confined in jail for twelve days he thought that he had received sufficient punishment. The prisoner nearly fainted away when he heard this light sentence, and throwing a $10 piece on the desk asked the Judge to give him $1 for car fare and told him to keep the rest. The Judge complied by giving him a dollar, and he quickly departed.

Deputy Marshal Rawson had another warrant against Long which had been sworn to by Marshal Lloyd and when he asked the Justice whether he could not serve that warrant before the prisoner got away, the Justice informed him that he could not again arrest Long as the matter had been finally settled.

There is no doubt but what the officers had a dangerous crook in their hands who was allowed his liberty for the nominal fine of $8.10 and the officers feel very much disgusted.

The Justice is an old gentleman and he is inclined to be lenient in his sentences, and when he reflected that the man had already been in jail for twelve days, he thought that the punishment had been severe enough. He should not, however, let the tender heart overstep justice in a case so flagrant as that of Long's and we hope that he will be a little more severe with such business in the future, for if he is not the officers will feel that it is not worth the while to capture criminals, and men of Long's stripe will be encouraged to come to Berkeley and victimize our citizens. The eagerness of Long to plead guilty and his haste to leave this section shows that he was very much afraid that the officers would recognize him as a man who was wanted upon some other charge much more serious.

Some time since the San Francisco Examiner offered a prize for the writer of the best 4th of July essay by school children.

Up to Independence Day several thousand school children composed and sent in their essays and among them was Arthur Baronidas, the 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Baronidas of West Berkeley.

In yesterday's issue of the Examiner the announcement of the winner was made and it was with no little pleasure that we read the name of Arthur Baronidas.

The young master feels very proud over being the winner, as does his parents and friends. The GAZETTE also feels proud of Arthur, and predicts for him a bright future.

Lucky Girl.

"Were you at the commencement last night?" asked Taddles of Willes. "I was. Wasn't Miss Senior's essay on 'In Life's Battles Aim High' a wonderfully fine production?"

"It was, indeed; but I was more deeply interested in Miss Trivett's essay on 'How to Make a Chicken Pot-Pie.' I heard that she received five proposals of marriage before she got out of the hall."—Harper's Bazar.

Unjust Suspicions.

There has not been any proof that young Cohen broke into Mr. McKenzie's house nor has his father ever acknowledged to Mr. McKenzie that his boy did it. The only suspicion that was placed on Cohen was that he was around there and had money and bought five bottles of sarsaparilla to treat the boys for the Fourth. He always played in the neighborhood. His having money is easily explained. He always has some, as he has the returns from a cow, for taking care of her for three years and has carried three daily papers and collected $20 or more due him since June 15th to July 4th. It is supposed that two or more were implicated and there were not any valuable glasses broken nor cider or soda water taken, also positively no stolen property was found in his possession.

His father has been willing to settle with Mr. McKenzie if it was proved against his boy, and there has been no proof yet. He now offers $20 reward to anyone who will give proof. He was not locked up on account of the McKenzie's affair at all. He was disobedient in small things and got chastised and stayed out and then was locked up. M. E. COHEN.

The Fall of the Bastille.

The fall of the Bastille was celebrated in befitting style at Shell Mound Park yesterday and was probably the largest picnic held at those grounds this year. The Railroad Company was taxed to its utmost to carry the crowds which were going and coming from early in the morning until late at night.

Dancing was kept up during the greater part of the day and night, while patriotic speeches were listened to by thousands.

The grounds were handsomely decorated with the American flags and the tri-colored flag of France, and all kinds of Chinese and Japanese lanterns, which gave the grounds a weird appearance after dark.

At a little after 8 o'clock a fine lot of fire works were set off and some of the set pieces were very fine. Owing to the heavy fog, however, the rockets were of no account, as they could not be seen after they had entered the fog.

The whole celebration was nicely planned and was a general success, their being nothing to mar the pleasure of those who were in attendance.

At Chicago yesterday, Catholic members of the Knights of Pythias, Odd Fellows and Sons of Temperance were authoritatively placed under the ban of the Romish church by the published order which takes effect immediately, and must now count themselves ostracised from all communication with the religion of their fathers. This is the effect of the Pope's edict read in all the churches throughout the diocese of Archbishop Feehan.

Miss Maud Packard a Berkeley High school graduate of the class of '94, will soon return to Berkeley to accept an engagement at a San Francisco theatre. She has been preparing for the stage during the last year in New York under the instruction of her mother, who has an established reputation as an actress. Miss Packard while in Berkeley will be the guest of the Misses Huggins on Durant avenue.

IS A MONSTER.

An Inhuman Husband in Oakland

Puts a Rope Around His Wives Neck

And Drags her Through The Creek

Because She Would Not Give Him Her Money—The Whipping Post The Place for Him.

Heartless Sam Stare.

Saturday night Samuel Stare, a bargeman of the estuary, Oakland, in order to compel his wife to give him money that he wanted, and which she had refused him, tied a rope around her neck and threw her overboard from the barge. Then he towed her up and down the estuary until she was all but drowned.

The woman screamed and floundered about in the water until she had exhausted herself. When Stare saw that she was sufficiently subdued, he pulled her out of the water and upon the barge. She was too weak for further resistance, and while in that condition he forced her to give up $100.

Apparently that was not enough, for this morning he kicked and beat her on the head and stomach until she ran away. She hid in a building on the corner of Twelfth and Harrison streets, where she was found later.

A policeman was sent for and went to the barge to get Stare. The bargeman drew a pistol and defied Policeman Clark to arrest him, but Clark grabbed him and took the pistol away. Stare was taken to jail where he was booked on charges of being drunk and disorderly and using vulgar language.

When Mrs. Stare was found she was hysterical from the hard usage she had undergone. There were black marks on the back of her neck and on her stomach where she had been kicked. One eye was bruised and her mouth and jaws swollen, where she had been beaten. Around her neck were the marks made by the rope with which she had been dragged through the water. She was taken to the Receiving hospital and treated. Later in the day she was able to go to the house of a friend, with whom she is now staying.

Stare is employed as a watchman on a barge that has its moorings at the foot of Alice street. His wife was formerly well connected. At the time she married Stare, some ten months ago, she was the widow of a well known druggist. Since her marriage with Stare she has been in almost constant trouble. It is said that at the time she married him she had considerable money in her own right. This has been a bone of contention between them ever since they were married.

The Emanuel Baptist Church at San Francisco was reopened yesterday for religious services, the Rev. J. Geo. Gibson preaching. It was in this church that two young girls were murdered, and Durrant has been charged with the crime of killing one of them. Hereafter services will be conducted every Sunday by the regular pastor.

Ben. Hamilton. Jeff Gregoire and Amele Sisterna got their blankets and such other articles of general use which they thought might be required during the next two months, packed and departed on the overland train today for Suisun, Vacaville and such other places as their fancy might take delight in. When it comes to orchards they will take their pick.

Mr. Charles Rooney is a very sick man. Notice was made in the GAZETTE on Saturday that he was quite ill. Today Dr. Lillancrantz of Oakland was telephoned to for consultation with Dr. Whitworth, Mr. Rooney's physician. His trouble is supposed to be stone in the bladder and the latest report is that the trouble has gone to the brain and but little hope is left of his recovery.

If the railroad company thinks it is going to have its own way in getting patents to mineral lands in this State it will soon find out its mistake. The California Miners' Association is still alive and intends to continue the fight against the railroad people and prevent what appears on the face to be a big steal.

The Berkeley Electric Railway company will shortly commence the erection of a large power house on the corner of Third street and University Avenue, on the lot next to where the match factory was recently erected. The application of the company for a franchise over certain streets not now contained in the franchise will be probably acted upon next Friday evening.

Orders have been issued for the cruiser Olympia to go on the Asiatic station to relieve the flagship Baltimore, although Admiral Carpenter has protested against the latter ship coming away. He wants more vessels. The Petrel will also come to Mare Island for repairs.

The fog was very dense last evening and at about 9 o'clock when the heavens south of town were lit up with a lurid glare many thought that some residence in South Berkeley had become a prey to the flames. Investigation proved that the fire was at the corner of Forty-first street and Telegraph Avenue.

The power-house of the local electric street car line will be located at the foot of University Avenue, between Third and Fourth streets. It is the intention of Superintendent Schmidt to construct a new track on the center of University Avenue, using the track now laid on the side of that street until the other is completed. The old track will then be removed and used on the Hopkins street branch.

If the people of Berkeley desire to enjoy a treat we would advise them to visit the west wing of the new conservatory in the University grounds, where they will see the finest exhibit of begonias that their eyes have ever rested upon. There is a good deal being written and said about the collection in Golden Gate Park, but this collection should be seen before too much comment is made upon other collections.

BERKELEY MARKETS.

To get the best the market affords a person should get to the sale place early in the morning when all the articles displayed are as fresh as it is possible to have them on a stand. One can walk about East, West and North Berkeley and find just as nice fruit, berries and vegetables on sale as in any town in the State and can purchase as cheap here as elsewhere. The new idea is to purchase everything at home that it is possible to do so, thereby keeping the money in circulation where it will do us the most good.

Just take a look at these places any morning and many of our readers will be surprised from the fact that they are not aware from personal observation what can be purchased in Berkeley. The stands show up in fine shape, berries of all kinds, peaches, pears, apricots and all kinds of vegetables that grow. Furthermore they are all right fresh from the vines, trees or bushes and have not been hauled and jostled all over the country. Give our home people a trial. It cannot cost you more than elsewhere and you will then actually know Berkeley's resources in this line of trade.

FLAG DAY.

At the National Educational Convention recently held in Denver there was considerable discussion in relation to having patriotism taught to a greater degree in the public schools than at present. For two or three years past this matter has been agitated in the Eastern States. It has got far enough along in some of the States to have a patriotic holiday for themselves and it is called flag day. It occurs on the 14th day of June. As many do not know what particular day was selected we will give the information and at the same time relate how the present American flag came into existence.

When the Mayflower came to America she bore the flag of Britain. According to King James' proclamation issued in 1606 the Kings' colors had to be displayed from the main top and a St. George's cross at the fore. In November 1635 the records of Massachusetts go to show that a complaint was entered, "that the ensign at Salem had been defaced by cutting out one part of the red cross." When it was shown that "the mutilation complained of was done, not from disloyalty to the flag, but from an entire conscientious conviction that it was idolatrous to allow it to remain." The opinion of the ministers was asked but they could not agree. The whole case was referred to the next general Court, and the commissioners for military affairs in the meantime ordered that all ensigns should be laid aside.

In 1635 the commissioners appointed colors for every company leaving out the cross and having the King's arms in them. In 1643 the colonies of Plymouth, Massachusetts and Connecticut were united in a league called "The United Colonies of New England." This union, the first on this continent, was declared to be perpetual but no common flag was adopted until 1686 when Governor Ambrose received one from the King. It was soon seen that a special flag was needed for the merchant marine of the United Colonies to distinguish them from the King's ships. An order to this effect was made by the Admiralty on July 29, 1776. The New England flag, the Pine Tree flag, the Bunker Hill flag and that of Massachusetts State Cruisers.

The first legislation of Congress on the subject of a Federal Navy was October 1775. Notwithstanding the equipment of this fleet the necessity of a common National flag was not thought of until a committee was appointed to attend to the matter. This committee recommended the retention of the Union Jack coupled to thirteen stripes alternate red and white, emblematic of the Union. This flag was first hoisted January 2, 1776 at Cambridge and was saluted with thirteen guns and thirteen cheers.

On June 14, 1777, nearly a year after the declaration of independence, the American Congress "Resolved, that the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes alternate red and white; that the Union be thirteen white stars on a blue field, representing a new constellation."

A careful examination of the journals of Congress shows this to have been the first, as it is the only record of the establishment of a National flag for the United States of America. This was printed in the newspapers at the time but was not officially promulgated at Philadelphia until September 3d of the same year.

The resolution does not state how the stars are to be placed or the number of points they shall have nor has there been any legislative enactment about it since, though custom has established five points. Nor does it say whether the stripes shall be horizontal or vertical, though from the beginning they have been placed horizontally.

It is claimed by the descendants of Mrs. John Ross of Philadelphia that she made the first pattern flag, and the house she lived in is still standing, being at 239 Arch street of that city.

As stated before, in some States the 14th of June has been selected as a holiday for the rising generation to show their patriotism in. This day has been chosen for scholars but when it gets to be used for this purpose throughout all the States and Territories it is quite probable that Congress may enact a law making it a National day, which will be in addition to the 4th of July.

Railroad Hospital.

Deputy Labor Commissioner Dam, who has been inquiring into the management of the railroad hospital fund, which is accumulated by deducting 50 cents a month from the pay of each employee, report that it has been decided by the company to use the $100,000 surplus which has accumulated by building a new hospital in Oakland. But it is not known whether this will be done at once, or some years later. Plans have not been drawn, and until they are it will be impossible to say whether the $100,000 will suffice for the purpose; if it will, the hospital will go up at once, but if it will not, the construction will be postponed until enough money is accumulated. It is intended to build of brick and wood, and to have accommodations for forty beds.

"Papa, why do they call these men that sell railroad tickets scalpers?"

"Because their skinning usually takes effect on the head of the family, I suppose," replied the father of six Christian Endeavor girls who were on their way to Boston.—Chicago Tribune.

CONSUMPTION.

Care of the Patient, That His Sufferings May Be Lessened.

The successful treatment of consumption—and by this is meant making the sufferer better able to bear his burden, if not actually lifting it from his shoulders—is largely a question of nursing. If the disease has already gained a foothold in most instances it is of no avail except in postponing the evil day, and even if it were otherwise a few general rules would be just as essential to insure the comfort of the patient while recovery is going on.

In the first place, then, we must understand exactly the condition of the consumptive, not so much by ascertaining the location and extent of his disease as by familiarizing ourselves with his temperament, his likes and dislikes, and, above all, with his power of endurance and resistance.

If we will bear these things in mind we may be able to do all that is possible for the sick one—namely, to enable him to withstand the onslaught of the disease until nature shall gain the controlling hand. So successful is this method of treatment that it often results in a complete or at least a temporary cure.

Consumption is one of the most devastating of diseases. Not only does it attack the lungs, but the action of the nervous system is sooner or later seriously interfered with, the digestion impaired, and the simplest form of excitement renders even the circulation of the blood dangerous from being overactive.

We shall come nearest to striking at the root of all these troubles if we direct our energies toward limiting the frequency and severity of the cough, and in this we have not only to follow the advice of the physician, taking care that his directions are exactly carried out, but we must give careful attention to nursing.

To prevent the first paroxysm of coughing, which is usually incited in the morning by the exertion of rising, a warm cup of tea or an egg-nog should be taken before the patient leaves the bed.

A glass of something warm, like hot milk or gruel, should also be taken before retiring, and plenty of time should be allowed in preparing for the bed. The patient should sleep in blankets, and a glass of warm drink should be placed within reach in case he should wake through the night.

If the presence of food in the stomach causes the reappearance of the cough after meals, some suitable preparation of pepsin should be used to hasten the digestion, and an hour or two's rest should be taken immediately after the meal.—Youth's Companion.

AN AVENUE OF IDOLS.

A Double Row of Japanese Buddhas Which Cannot Be Counted.

Close to this interesting pool is the avenue of images, representing the Amida Buddha. The idols vary in size, but are similar in design. There are several hundred of them altogether, and they sit facing one another in two long rows. We asked the little Jap who brought us to the place how many of them there were. In an awed whisper he replied, "Nobody knows." Then he told us how impossible it was to count them. Each image was made unsightly by having numbers of little bits of paper stuck on to it and chewed bits of paper which had been spat at it. The object of this disfigurement we failed to discover, though our friend Hojo informed us they were put on by the young priests, a part of whose novitiate it was to attempt to count the Buddhas.

There is evidently something wrong with these idols, for no one has ever been able to reckon them up the same twice over, in spite of sticking a piece of paper to tick each one off. Of course two unsuperstitious Englishmen were not to be humbugged by native stories, so M. (my traveling companion) and I, thinking the whole thing ridiculous, decided to count the mysterious images. We started on co-operative lines, each taking a side of the avenue. Our efforts, however, were fruitless, for we had not numbered off more than a dozen each, before M. (whose eyes were not so good as they had once been) shouted across to me: "I say, I saw one of them on your side moving. I'm certain I did. They're uncanny. Let's give it up." This interruption of course upset all my calculations, but we soon came on the moving image, which turned out to be nothing more than one of the old Frenchmen, seated peacefully among the statues and looking in his white clothes for all the world like a jolly, fat, old Buddha.—Gentleman's Magazine.

4,000 Miles With a Wheelbarrow.

In 1878 Lyman Potter of New York state performed the prodigious task of pushing a common "paddy" wheelbarrow across the continent. He started from his home on Dane street, Albany, on the morning of April 10, 1878, and arrived in San Francisco on the afternoon of Oct. 5 of the same year, being almost exactly 178 days (five hours and three minutes over) in performing the wearisome feat. Potter was a shoemaker, and the trip was the result of a wager made by some friends who believed that such a trip would occupy at least 200 days. The wager was $1,000, but Potter made between three and five times that sum advertising for different parties along the route. The wheelbarrow was made specially for the use to which it was put and weighed but 75 pounds. The distance traveled by Potter was exactly 4,085½ miles.—St. Louis Republic.

The Man He Wanted.

"I beg your pardon," said one man to another in a railroad train, "but I am the manager of a museum, and I have a vacancy now for a strong man."

"Well, what of it?"

"Why, sir, I saw you open the car window with no apparent effort, and I thought perhaps we could agree on the terms and you could begin your engagement immediately."—Detroit Free Press.

THE STORY OF A BEAR.

The Truth Came Out In Spite of the $25.
Paid to Suppress It.

"There used to be some good hunting up in Maine, about Rangley lake," said Mr. T. L. Page. "A house that I managed in the little village of Phillips was the headquarters of a lot of Nimrods, who came up every season after big game. Of all the ardent sportsmen, two New Yorkers, chums and partners in business, Messrs. Buckley and Webb, were the keenest lovers of the chase. They were very successful hunters, too, and generally carried off the palm both as to quality and quantity of game.

"One season, however, they met with very poor luck, and after spending about a week in camp, with nothing to show for their labors, started to come to town, with the intention of going home. On their way in they overtook a countryman driving a farm wagon, in the bed of which lay one of the handsomest specimens of black bear that the New Yorkers had ever laid eyes on. The rustic stopped his team to let the city strangers admire his big take. Suddenly a brilliant idea occurred to Buckley. 'What would you be willing to sell your bear for?' said he to the farmer.

"Well, the state gives a bounty of $10 for every bear, and I reckon if you'll give me $10 more you can have him."

"Buckley gave the old man his price, with $5 additional, first exacting from him a solemn promise that he would never breathe a syllable of the transaction to any one. Then he and Webb rode ahead, and on reaching the hotel told in most enthusiastic style how they had killed the biggest black bear that had ever come out of the Maine woods. They entered into details of the shooting, and every guest of the house was on the qui vive for a look at brain, that was coming on a little later. He was such a heavy beast that the mighty hunters were forced to hire an old farmer to bring him in town in a wagon. Pretty soon the wagon hove in sight and a big crowd gathered at the hotel entrance to see him unloaded. Exclamations of delight were heard on every side, and Buckley and Webb were the heroes of the hour.

"Down in the little village of Phillips Old Sol Mayberry, with a bigger wad of cash in his pocket than he had possessed for a long time, was getting very drunk on the proceeds of his sale, and after the third or fourth round of drinks he couldn't resist telling how, on that very morning, he had caught in a trap the finest bear he'd ever beheld, and how he had sold him to two chaps from the city. The facts leaked out in less than an hour, and the conspirators were forced to own that Old Sol had spoken the truth. Their bill for champagne that day was in three figures."—Washington Post.

Indoor Bicycle Riding.

Nowadays every one wants to ride a bicycle, but many do not attempt it because they dread the ordeal of learning. In the first place they dislike the idea of abrasions and bruises, and in the second they can hardly bring themselves to the sacrifice of dignity which the foundering of the beginner usually entail. They need no longer hesitate. The bicycle can now be learned indoors, safe from prying eyes and without fear of falls. A new appliance designed for this purpose consists of a small flywheel covered with rubber and two side wheels fitted with a simple arrangement by means of which it can be adjusted to any kind of cycle in two minutes. Its great advantage is that the rider experiences the same momentum as in a spin on a hard road, while the machine either remains stationary or moves so slowly that in traversing 15 feet the same amount of exercise is obtained as in a mile of ordinary traveling.

Practice can thus be carried on in a hall or room, and riders can gauge the rate of speed their exertions would have given them on the highway. For beginners, children and invalids needing physical exercise this invention is specially adapted, as it stands perfectly steady and enables the difficulties of mounting and dismounting to be thoroughly overcome without danger of falls or bruises. The appliance is collapsible, weighs 15 pounds and can be easily carried in the hand.—Exchange.

Wood Paving.

A nonslipping wood pavement has been recently devised which is claimed to be simple, inexpensive and efficient. It consists in preparing the wooden blocks before they are laid by boring a few holes in them and filling the same with a hard setting substance composed of crushed stone, bitumen and Portland cement. The compound is cleared off even with the surface, and when they are laid the roadway is thus covered with a series of rough spots which arrest the foot of the horse in all conditions of weather, and prevent the animal from slipping. Wood paving is extensively used in England and France.—Northeastern Lumberman.

Division of the Sexes.

One of the most remarkable churches to be found at Frondenthal, in the Black Forest. It is built on such a plan that the men are unable to see the women, and vice versa, for it is composed of two wings, which meet at an angle where the pulpit stands. The right wing is allotted to men, and the left one to the women of the congregation.—Berlin Letter.
